BLACK HILLS.

A man named Frank Goodwin, who went to the Black Hils country in search of gold, has just returned to St. Joseph and gives a most discouraging account of mining prospects in that country—says the whole thing is a traud. He says that Omaha is crowded with returned and impoverished miners. Such is usually the case.

SPEAKER KERR.

Great dissatisfaction prevails in the East, and the Pennsylvanians especial ly are indignant at the alleged unimportant positions given members from that State. The trouble is the great men clamoring for desirable positions were far in excess of places of the kind at the disposal of the Speaker.

So a couldn't rest. But owing to the overflowed within the meaning of the bad weather and misfortunes of the swamp grant, but any proceedings which may be had in support of the claim for indomnity, will not affect the tille to the lands for which such indemnity is claimed. Very Respectfully, be there. were far in excess of places of the kind at the disposal of the Speaker.

THE STATE GRANGE.

Patrons of Amedondry, which met a Sedalia Dec. 14, 1875, adopted a revised constitution for the government of the order in Missouri. The instrumen consists of 27 articles and a set of By-Laws of 10 articles. Some radical changes were engrafted in the new constitution, some of which will have to be ratified by two-thirds of all the State Granges in the Union before they can become a law.

T. R. Allen of St. Louis is still master of the State Grange. James Debolt is master of the Holt county Grange.

LITERARY DISCUSSION.

been going on for some time among the schoolmen of Germany respecting the French language in the public schools and gymnasia of the country. The Germans feel that they have been so much democalized by the fouris of frothy French interacture that it would be hetter to dispense with it altogether, rather than that their youth should suffer its deteriorating influence. The question has recently been treated quite exhaustively by a German professor, who feels that the language is rich in farmers sold their hogs, and Uncle science and literature, and may, if properly treated, be made an instrument of polite culture; he scrongly contends for its retention in the schools, with a careful selection and vigorous expurgation of the books. This last is, doubt less, the true answer to the question fo them and ourselves. A great deal of the French literature that is read in our schools is of the most baneful character, and should have no place in school or family reading. While there is much that is good and poble in the language a careful sitting is needed, that the base and quasi-obscene may be removed. Every teacher of the language in this country should be held responsible tor the kind of French reading which he puts into the hands of his pupils. UNSAPE BRIDGES.
